

Environmental Stories About Animals and Animations

What is the Green Kids Club and what do we do?

Green Kids Club focuses on spreading the word about environmental issues relating to people and animals through storytelling.

We do this by working with conservation groups such as Elephants Without Borders, Saving the Survivor, Blood Lions, and writing children's books related to environmental issues they are experiencing.

After publishing a book with one of these conservation groups, we donate part of our proceeds to their organization.

What is the Green Kids Club and what do we do?

We also promote the story and issue through social media and classroom experiences (virtual or actual).

Often our books are given to children around the world to educate them about animals and their environment (we do this through our non-profit arm – Love the Wild Foundation).

We hope the work we do will make a difference in this world and its animals!

Environmental Heroes

Environmental Heroes Series are stories about animals and their survival. The stories take children on adventures that will help them understand more about the natural world.

Grizzly 399 – Abridged Version Based on the True Story of a Grizzly Bear in Teton National Park

ISBN: 9781955023788-PB, 9781955023771-HB

48 full-color pages, 11" x 8.5", Ages 5-9

Featuring unique illustrations and amazing photography in this creative story about Grizzly 399's life, supported by photos and facts about grizzly bears.

"In a delightful tale about one of the most famous and remarkable grizzlies of all time – known as #399 – Sylvia Medina takes you on an intimate and sometimes harrowing journey of discovery into the life of a bear. Grizzly 399 reminds us why we need wild animals in our lives and how they depend on us to adapt to a rapidly changing world. The grizzly has no better friend than Tom Mangelsen, whose photos grace these pages. As #399 and her family give us joy, they and other grizzlies are counting on our respect and compassion to survive."

-Tillywig Award Review

Wolf Howls

Wolf Howls is a sensitive story that makes young children aware that many wild animals should not be killed, but instead preserved. It is a story parents will enjoy reading to their children whose attention will be held by the engaging illustrations in a tale that emphasizes that animals also live in families that care for each other.

- Ruth Heidrich, Ph.D with Martin Rowe, Vegans in Paradise

Grizzly Ghost Bear

"Grizzly bears are magnificent! Taking care of wild animals like the Grizzly Bear is a job for all of us. Thank you, Green Kids Club, for doing your part in keeping bears and other wildlife safe and respected."

-Jack Hanna, Director Emeritus, Columbia Zoo and Aquarium
Host Jack Hanna's Into the Wild and Jack Hanna's Wild Countdown

A "Tail" of Three Lions

"This adventure story is a wonderful way to spark a passion for protecting animals and their habitats. I also love the science section at the end of the book, with a deeper look at the issues raised in the story."

-Leanna, All Done Monkey

The Elephant and the King

"The children's book is a delightful story embracing the splendor and abundance of Africa's wildlife, sending a pertinent message that wildlife and people can co-exist and live in harmony, yet also delicately brings light to a critical issue regarding the plight of wild elephants."

-Kelly Landen with Elephants Without Borders

How it all began...

Sylvia Medina is passionate about the environment and the animals that live in this world. As a child, she loved to hike and enjoy the wilderness and especially loved animals. She took this passion and dedicated herself to becoming an Environmental Engineer, where she could make a difference.

Sylvia is also a mother of twins – a boy and a girl (Victor and Maya) and a younger boy (Tiago). When she had her children, she realized there was a need to teach children the importance of environmental stewardship and sustainability for our world and its animals. Sylvia recognized that children love animals, colors, other children, and magic. So, she developed the Green Kids Club, where children can enjoy environmental adventures and learn the importance of taking care of our world.

Our Team...

Sylvia M. Medina
Founder & President

Sylvia is the primary author and creative director of the Green Kids Club. She also founded the Snake River Animal Shelter, East Idaho's only non-profit animal sheltering facility, to fill a community need. Sylvia's dedication to animals and their well being is clearly demonstrated in the causes she supports.

Joy Eagle
Illustrator

Joy illustrated the classic Green Kids Club books and has been a part of the team for many years. She recycles, winterizes her home to save energy, and always watches for ways to improve our environment.

Julie Bottum
Main
Marketer,
Project Manager

Julie has a true dedication to animals, as seen in her life-long association with horses and dogs. She educates others and shares the benefits of animal and human interaction.

Grace Peters
Researcher

Grace's love for animals started as a toddler, preferring nonfiction ape and monkey books to fairytales. Her passion for animals grew alongside her blossoming passion for writing about animals and conserving the beautiful species that inhabit our earth.
